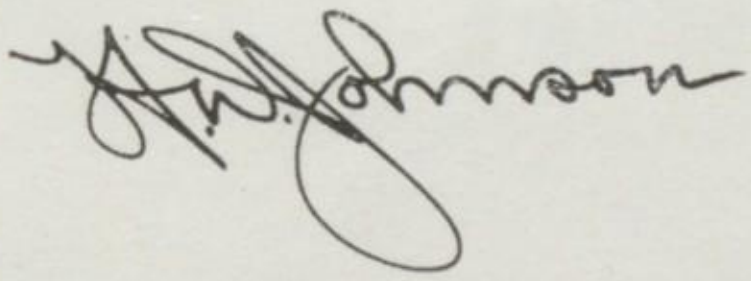
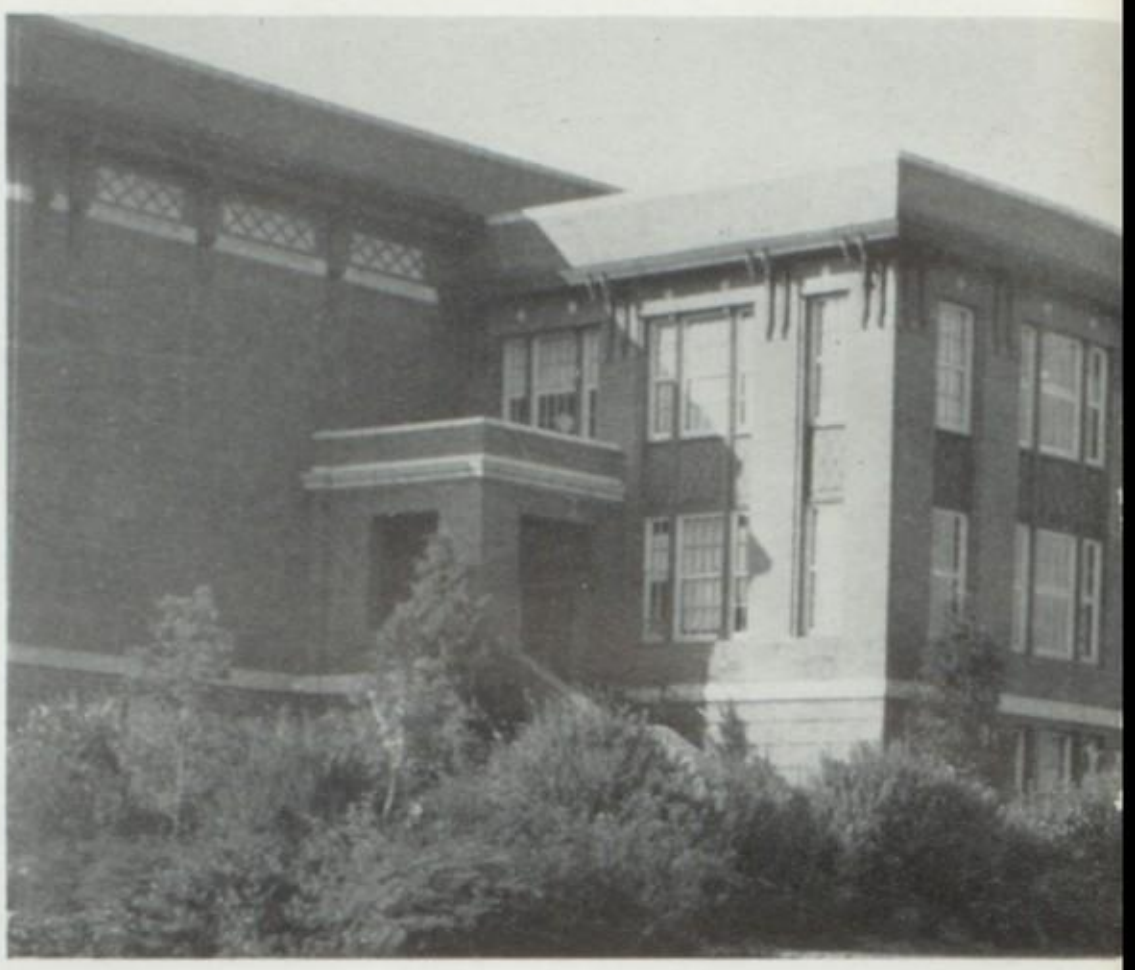
CONFUCIUS

Our Principal's Viewpoint

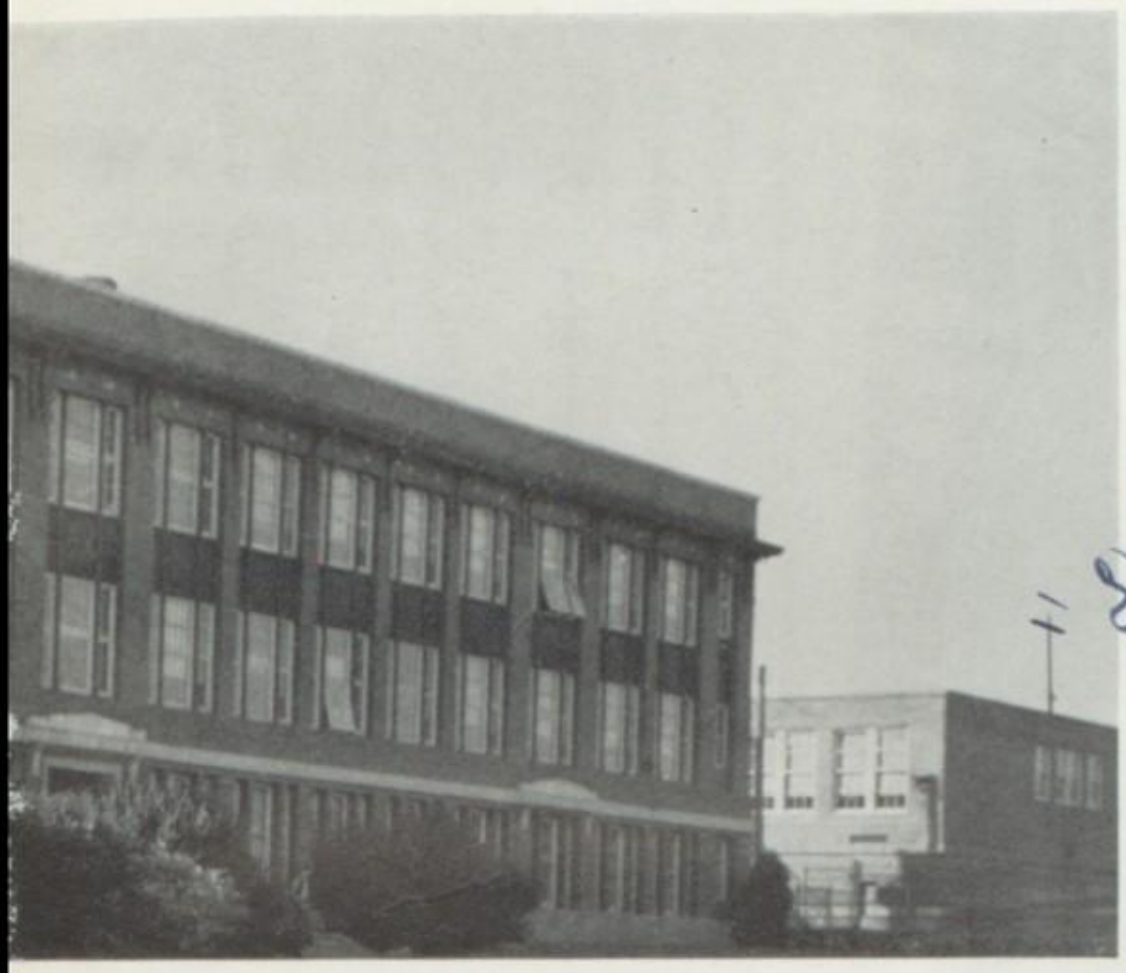
There is an old saying that "all men are brothers under the skin" but my own observation is that we judge more by the "skin" itself than by what is under it. We judge by exteriors, by the clothes, by the way the hair is done, by the pronunciation, or by the manner of speech. These may be signs, but we must learn to give them no more than their proper evaluation. We must learn to look deeper than these exteriors in judging our fellow men, and be ready to recognize and appraise other less evident values—honesty, courage, loyalty and integrity of character.

Our false evaluation of outward signs is based on our limited experience and our prejudices. Therefore, we need more experience, broader and deeper. During our school years we need to learn to look for the fundamental things rather than at the superficial; the inward, not so much the outward; the important, not the trivial. Our boys in far away lands and across the seven seas are learning this in their dealings with elemental matters in the present struggle to retain civilization. I trust that what they develop among the boys of other lands in the way of a deeper tendency toward mutual understanding, they will share with us on their return.

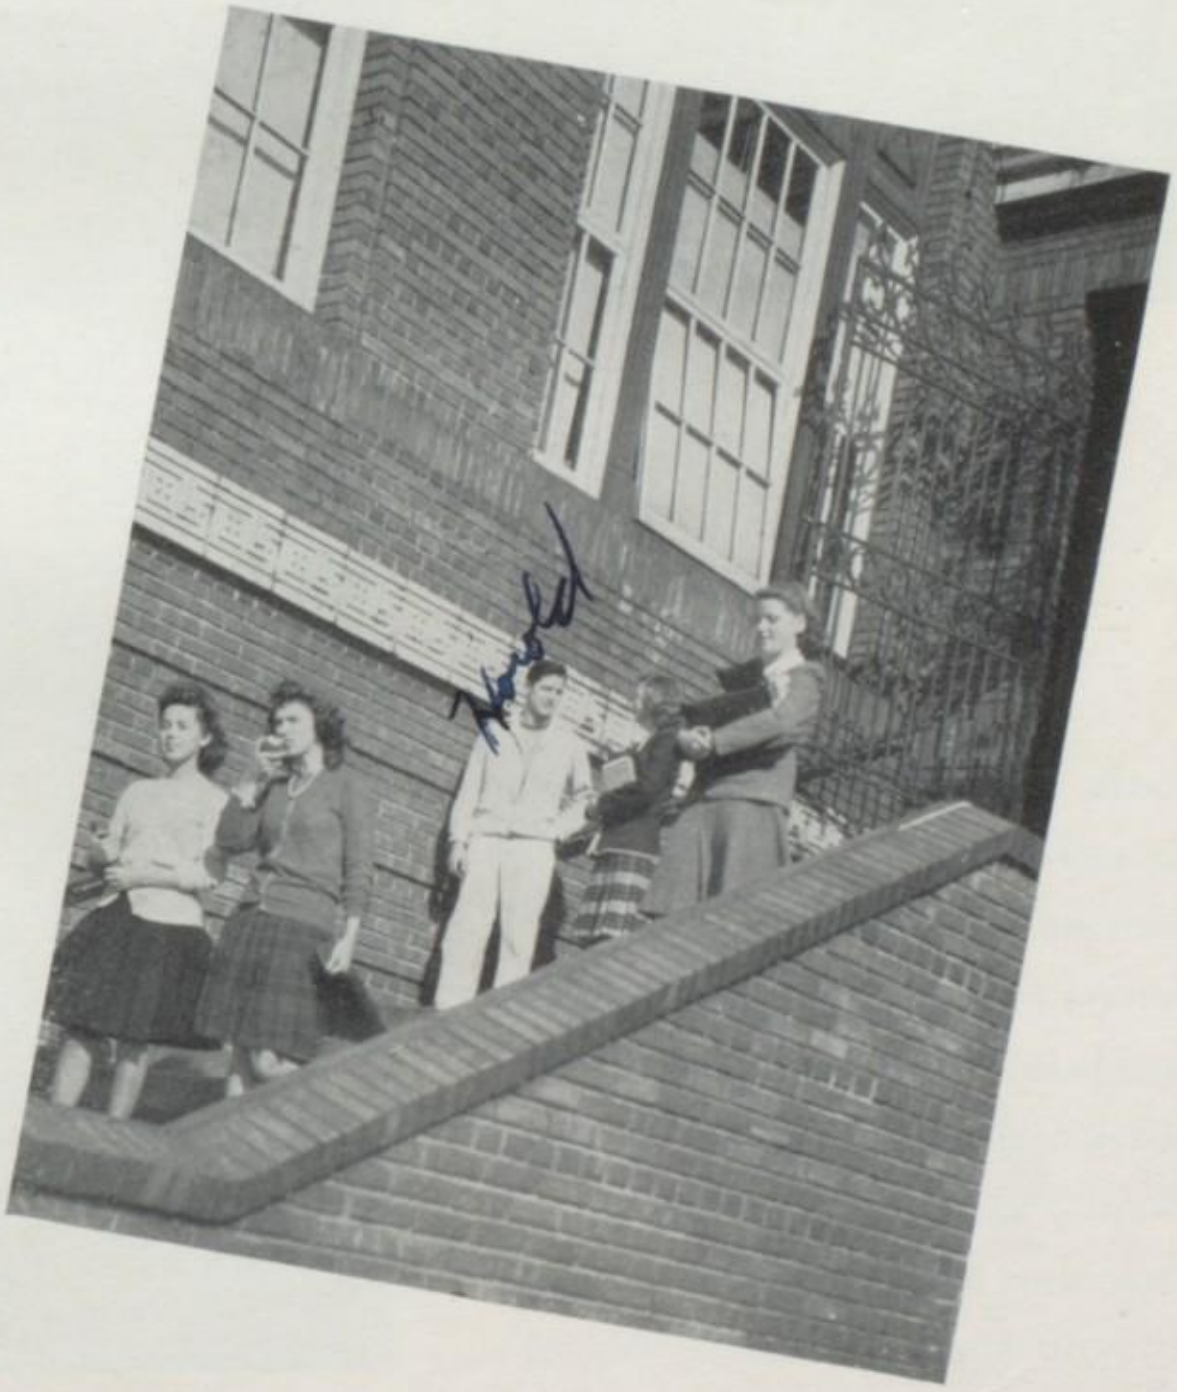




Ambitious youth looks forward to the realization of greater achievement and the attainment of chosen goals. Ideals developed during high school days will be a constant source of inspiration.



Training in recreation and good sportsmanship is as important in the high school curriculum as is academic work. Books put aside, students hurry forth to enjoy to the full their leisure time.



Young people, influenced by the rush and excitement of the world today, have accepted greater responsibilities and much of their leisure time is spent in serious discussion of current problems. Frequent visits of former Ballardites now in uniform helps keep the students impressed with the seriousness of these war-time days.

Good luck
Charlie

The merriment pictured here proves that all work and no play does not always apply to vivacious boys and girls. Alert students pause a few moments to discuss items of school news and to exchange choice bits of gossip. These groups, ever present in the halls, reflect interest and enthusiasm for the various school activities.

They Set The Pace . . .

The more than fifty members of the Ballard faculty, in a united effort, have brought the students to the termination of a year filled with changes, good times, hard study, and a host of new experiences. Their guidance has helped build the character of the Youth of Today so that they will be able to meet the problems of the world of tomorrow.

No year passes without changes in the faculty personnel. Miss Helen Lewis replaced Mrs. Stackpole in the girls' physical education department. With the departure of Mrs. Margaret Garred, her attendance work went to Miss Irva Knuppenburg and her Spanish classes and the Spanish Club to Miss Beulah Russell. Mrs. Mildred Young's place in the study hall was filled by Miss Adeline Rowe. Mr. Nardin ceded the job of handling intra-murals and the Field Patrol to Mr. Whitehead, who also added a course in navigation to his busy schedule.

The opening of a Red Cross Room, where girls volunteered to work during their spare time, was an innovation this year. Here gifts for service men were wrapped and packed; colorful ornaments and trimmings were made to brighten the Christmas trees at the Naval Hospital. Drives to collect paper and tin, campaigns to sell War Stamps and Bonds kept the teachers in charge of War Activities busy this year and gave every student an opportunity to contribute to the war effort.

In keeping with the theme of this year's Shingle, the Faculty answered inquiries about their travel experiences in the past and their plans for post-war vacations. Many interesting and unusual bits of information disclosed that our teachers are by no means the "stay at home bodies" we had believed. It is our hope that the highlights we have chosen from the faculty questionnaires will result in a better and more interesting acquaintance with Ballard teachers.

MARVIN MINZEL, Senior Counselor—Is interested in Mexico and all the neighbors to the South. MADALENE RYDER, Office—Looks forward to the day when she will be able to repeat her trip "Around the World." MARGUERITE HANQUET, Office—Wishes to visit Belgium for sentimental reasons. JOSEPH McCOMB, Boys' Adviser—He would like to visit Norway. ANN CHAMBERLIN, Girls' Adviser—Declares it would take volumes to tell about the nations she has visited. IRA J. PEASE, Study Hall—Traveling has taught him the value of being an American. ADELINE ROWE, Study Hall—Her knowledge of Spanish will be helpful when she visits South America. ROBERT CUNNINGHAM, Engineer—As a ship's engineer, he has sailed the Seven Seas. ALBIN CARLSON, Custodian—Was impressed by the clean, well-kept cities of Sweden.

IRVA KNUPPENBURG, English—Has seen both the snowy wastes of Alaska and the tropical magic of Hawaii. KATHERINE OLSEN, English—Wishes to visit Ireland to meet her Dad's folks and to kiss the Blarney Stone.

Freedom of Speech . . .

The English department aims to develop ability and poise in public speaking and smoothness and correctness in writing. Necessary to the accomplishment of these goals are many hours of research, careful organization of materials, word study, vocabulary building, and much practice in expository writing.

Outstanding examples of good literary style in poetry, novels, and essays are carefully studied and analyzed. These classics furnish students with a standard by which to measure their own literary efforts—a goal toward which to strive.

This year Seattle students are fortunate in having a new "Guidebook," which provides in handy reference form, the means of making their work correct and uniform in method and detail.

The etiquette rules practiced by Mrs. Stronach's Composition III students will prove valuable as well as practical for future use.

MAUDE STRONACH, English—Would like to see, once again, the old cathedrals and museums of Europe. AGNES ARNOLD, English—Because she speaks Norwegian and Danish, she must feel at home in the Ballard district.

MARY B. BLANCHARD

VERA NICHOLSON, English—Admires the European reverence for old customs and traditions. GLADYS WILSON, English—She would like to visit Guatemala because her friends are so enthusiastic about that country. MARY BLANCHARD, English—Is so satisfied with the Northwest that she does not yearn for foreign travel.

Seek and Ye Shall Find...

From classics to fairy tales, from dictionaries to mystery thrillers, you will always find plenty of useful as well as entertaining material on the shelves of Ballard's library. Here the quiet atmosphere makes concentration easier, and the willing help of Miss Lytle and Mrs. Cody in looking up reference material proved invaluable.

Regular classes are held each year giving instruction in the use of the library and all reference materials. Through the Readers' Guide and card catalogues, information seekers were able to locate the exact material desired. The magazine room provided up-to-date pamphlets, newspapers and magazines to meet the needs of all.

Checking out books, refiling, repairing damaged editions, and answering student inquiries kept the library staff on the jump from eight to four every day.

The library hums with activity as books are checked in and out and references are looked up.

MARY LYTLE, Librarian—A highlight of her travels was her trip over the Siberian Railroad. XORA CODY, Library Clerk—Wants to go all the way to London just to hear "Big Ben" strike.

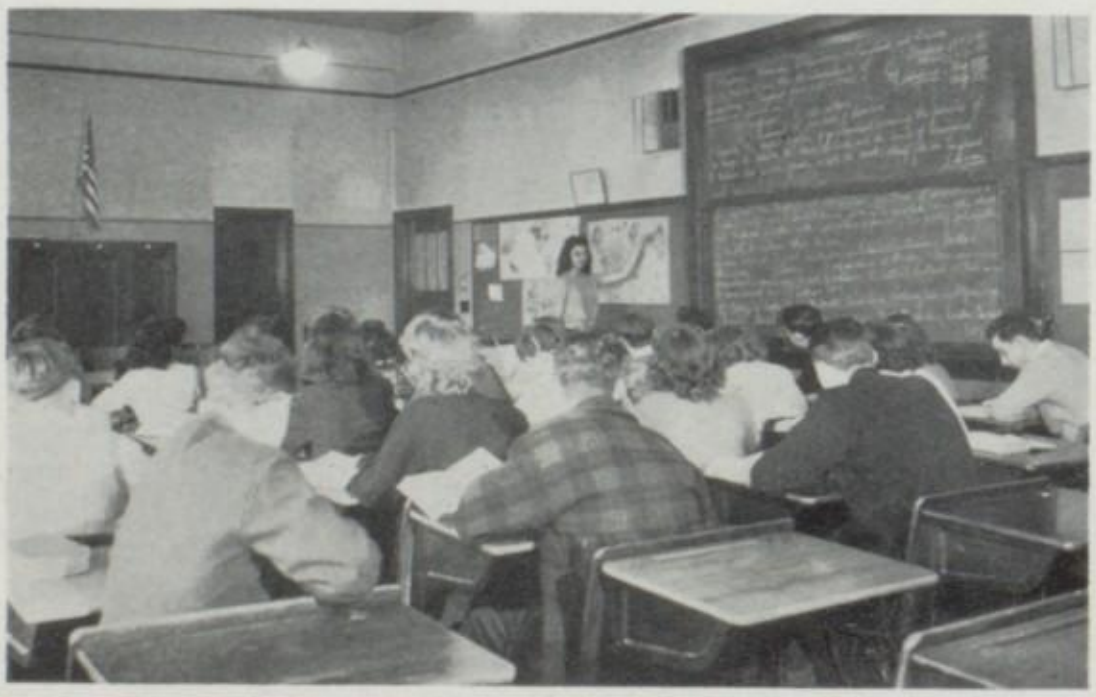
DON C. TAYLOR, History—Is impressed by our northern neighbor, Canada. LILLIAN BECKER, History—The beautiful scenery of Brazil calls her. GORDON SPECK, History—Interested in all countries, as he feels that all men are brothers under the skin.

Past, Present, and Future

In this global age, students must have an understanding of the historic background of all nations as well as a thorough knowledge of modern trends. For Northwest students this requires not only a familiarity with European history, but a more intimate knowledge of our neighbors to the South and those of the entire Pacific Rim. With this insight future citizens are better equipped to meet political, economic, and social problems with intelligence.

To keep up-to-date on the daily progress of the "March to Berlin," World History students take advantage of modern projection maps.



FRANK ROWLEE

FRANK ROWLEE, History — Would like to visit South America and study the handicrafts of the people.

DONALD ARMSTRONG, History—Has a longing to visit all parts of the globe. JAMES DALLAS, History—Where he's been, whither he goes, no one knows. AL NARDIN, History—Hopes to visit France, the land of his ancestors.

United by Speech

BEULAH RUSSELL

ARRA WOODS

BEULAH RUSSELL, Languages—Likes France and the French people because she studied there. ARRA WOODS, Languages—"Gets around" from Mexico to Manchuria.

Foreign languages are more important than ever in these days of closer contact with other countries. In addition to Latin, which is an important background for all modern languages, Ballard pupils this year studied French and Spanish. Representative speakers and skits and assemblies presented by the foreign language clubs gave an opportunity to become familiar with the music and customs of various countries, thus promoting a greater feeling of kinship with other peoples.

As Pan-American Day draws near, the "South American Way" is the subject under discussion with these Spanish students.

FRANK VOILAND, Commercial—Believes in "Seeing America First". MARVIN MINZEL, Commercial—Enjoyed Mexico but was shocked by the wide-spread poverty.

They Mean Business

Again this year the aim of the Commercial Department has been to give a thorough training, which will enable graduates to go out into the business world and assume positions of responsibility in offices or stores. Long hours of practice on the typewriter, drill in writing and transcribing shorthand, or keeping a set of books, prepared commercial students for their chosen work. The retail selling class, in addition to training in selling procedures, gave instruction in merchandising and testing of fabrics. The department was kept busy all year fitting people to meet the ever-increasing demand for trained workers.

Concentration, a few minutes time, and presto—a typewritten page emerges, despite the noisy atmosphere.

ROBERT DODDS

EVA WOODS

MARIAN CANDEE

ROBERT DODDS, Commercial—The vast stretches of Canada impressed him. EVA WOODS, Commercial—Knows China intimately from years of teaching there. MARION CANDEE, Commercial—Says she was on top of the world when she climbed the Canadian Rockies.

LEE HESSELTINE

ESTHER HENTON

LEE HESSELTINE, Commercial — Because of friends in Australia, the land of "Waltzing Matilda" beckons him. ESTHER HENTON, Commercial—Would like to be a good neighbor and visit South America.

B. FORREST VOEKS

EDITH VAN WINKLE

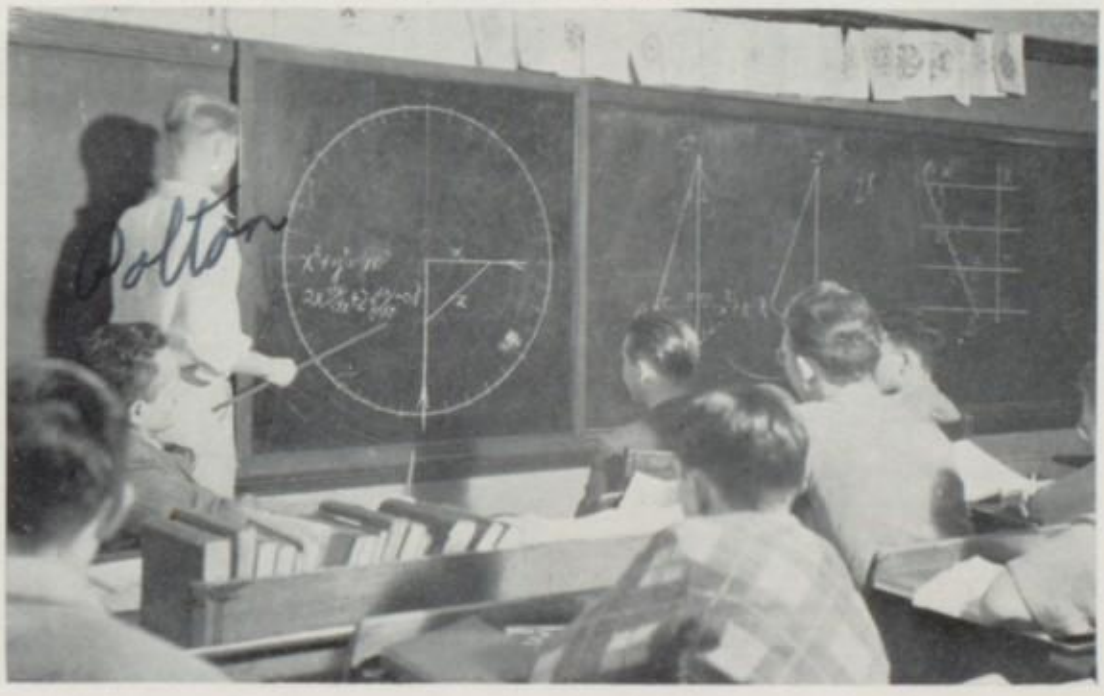
FLORA COCHRAN

B. FORREST VOEKS, Mathematics — Wants to visit South America because of Walt Disney's "Saludos Amigos". Edith VAN WINKLE, Mathematics— Thinks the Canadian Rockies the most beautiful spot in the world. FLORA COCHRAN, Mathematics — Eastern Canada is her favorite vacation spot.

Square Root of Education

The Mathematics Department covers everything from basic arithmetic to complex trigonometry. Students who needed to have special difficulties in arithmetic "ironed out" were advised to take the course in basic mathematics. Realizing that a greater knowledge of mathematics would further their chance of advancement in the armed services, this year boys have registered in the advanced mathematics courses in unusually large numbers. Of special interest to the pre-induction students were the courses in aero-preflight and navigation. The higher mathematics classes gave much valuable information to those who expect to enter the fields of engineering or science.

Engrossed in their Math Anal., these students are directing their attention on the implicit differentiation alias the "infernal triangle."



ORRE NOBLES

FLORENCE WILSON

ORRE N. NOBLES, Art—Is without a doubt the most traveled member of our faculty. FLORENCE WILSON, Art—Destination England, for her ancestors built the city of Leeds.

With Brush and Needle

ALICE DODGE

LOIS C. LEGG

ALICE DODGE, Home Economics—Believes that wherever you travel, people are naturally friendly. LOIS LEGG, Home Economics — Her ambition will be achieved when she visits Mexico.

The Art Department won recognition this year when a calendar designed in the commercial art class was chosen for city-wide distribution. Another project was the designing of Christmas cards which were sent to Ballard students in the service.

Home Economics courses, in addition to foods and clothing, included work in home nursing and child care. The girls took special delight in bathing little "Home Ec", the four-months baby doll.

With manikins for demonstration and practice, clothing classes took on added interest.

HARRIET CHARLTON

T. STEWART SMITH

T. STEWART SMITH, Music—Was born "by yon bonnie banks and yon bonnie braes". HARRIET CHARLTON, Music—Wants to see the rest of the U.S. before visiting Europe.

Humming With Activity

Changing the tune a little, a Music Theory class was introduced this year to provide an opportunity for youthful composers. The popular listening enjoyment class, too, was a recent innovation. Vocal and instrumental groups were much in demand for community programs.

The Industrial Arts Department hummed with activity as the boys in wood and metal shops worked at their individual projects. The drafting department developed skill in architectural and mechanical drawing.

Armed with compasses and T-squares, these prospective draftsmen concentrate upon accurate construction.

BYRON PAYNE

R. C. GOODMAN

ANDREW McCONNELL, Industrial Arts—Is still loyal to his native land, Scotland. BYRON PAYNE, Industrial Arts—Saw Germany re-arming long before the war. REUBEN C. GOODMAN, Industrial Arts — He joined Uncle Sam's Navy and saw the world.

HARRY GLASER

BESS BURLEIGH

HARRY GLASER, Science—Is curious about the whole, wide world. BESS BURLEIGH, Science — Her interests in South America have developed because of situations in this war.

For a Better Tomorrow . . .

Tomorrow's world will require citizens who have a wider knowledge of the various sciences. Courses at Ballard have been redesigned this year to prepare students for such a role in the post-war world. Chemistry classes developed special techniques which will enable students to go far as research chemists. Biology and health education groups completed their courses better fitted for a happier and more healthful life. Due to the war, the subject of physics has increased in popularity among the students. In this course pupils have gained experience in everything from charging storage batteries to working with light and sound waves. The more technical sciences such as auto-mechanics, radio theory, and photography had a greater enrollment this year than ever before. The botany classes with their bumper crops demonstrated what home gardens can produce. As a result of this scientific training offered at Ballard, many men and women of tomorrow will be well trained for an important place in the realm of science.

LEAH B. GRIFFIN, Science — Enjoys the quaint Canadian cities because of their "old world" atmosphere. VIRGIL WHITEHEAD, Science—Would like to drop in on his relatives in England. WARREN HODGE, Science — Would rather stay at home and raise turkeys than go to Turkey. GLEN WALKER, Science — Gained much first-hand information from his summer in Japan.

HENRY BENDELE | JOHN KOENIG | CAROL CORNISH | HELEN LEWIS

HENRY BENDELE, Physical Education—Enjoyed Mexican food on his trip "South of the Border." JOHN KOENIG, Physical Education—Likes the ways of the good-natured Canadians. CAROL CORNISH, Physical Education—Dreams of the day when she can pass through the Panama Canal in her own boat. HELEN LEWIS, Physical Education — Missed American hamburgers when she visited Mexico.

Vim, Vigor and Vitality

Ever since the beginning of the war, Ballard has done its part to prepare boys for the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps. Under the direction of Mr. Bendele and Mr. Koenig, the boys in commando gym have a daily course in marching, running, jumping over fences, and climbing obstacles. No matter how rugged this may seem, the boys appreciate it because they realize that it develops confidence, stamina, individual leadership, and physical fitness. While the Senior boys engage in these activities five days a week, the Sophomore physical education classes are limited to two one-hour periods weekly.

In the girls' physical education classes, conducted by Miss Cornish and Miss Lewis, all girls were weighed and measured. Based on the findings, special adapted activity classes were formed, with the purpose of giving a more individualized instruction. Archery, soft-ball, and golf attracted many girls during the pleasant spring weather.

Just as our nation aims to govern in true democratic fashion, so does our school through its two governing bodies, the Student Council and the Senate. Both groups are elected by the students to represent them in all matters pertaining to student government.

The Student Council, in weekly meetings with Mr. Johnson, Principal, discussed the various problems involved in keeping student affairs running smoothly. The Assembly Order Committee, a sub-committee of the Student Council, worked diligently to maintain order in the assemblies. The advisory groups of those students who violated the rules of good conduct in assembly were punished by being barred from further attendance. The absence of noise and confusion in the assemblies during the year proved the success of this plan. In addition to the many well-established committees already sponsored by the Council, an innovation this year was the poster committee, formed to publicize the school social activities, the sports program, and the many drives held to further the war effort.

The Senate, a group of elected representatives from each advisory roll, met monthly with the Council to plan and discuss the activities and projects in which the students participated during the year. Because of this experience in self-government, Ballard students will be better prepared to assume their responsibilities as good citizens in this democratic world.

Unity of purpose is the aim of the Girls' Club, an organization which has promoted a spirit of cooperation and friendliness among the girls for more than twenty years.

With the completion of the new Girls' Club unit this year, a dream that started many years ago has finally been realized. These rooms consist of a new office for the Girls' Adviser, Miss Chamberlin, an office for the doctor and nurse, a waiting room, and a club room to be used for all girls' activities.

The noon dances, parties, meetings and drives were carried on successfully by the numerous committees.

The Boys' Club is one of Ballard's least exclusive, yet most popular and active organizations. It sponsors school athletics, supplies equipment for the cheer leaders, provides letters for team members, emblems for the Beaver Service Club, and gives annual dinners for the football and basketball teams. This year it has put into effect plans for financing and constructing a trophy case.

One of the club's major tasks was compiling and maintaining a file of Ballardites now in the service. The file made it possible to alphabetize our Honor Roll and determine the number placed on the new service flag.

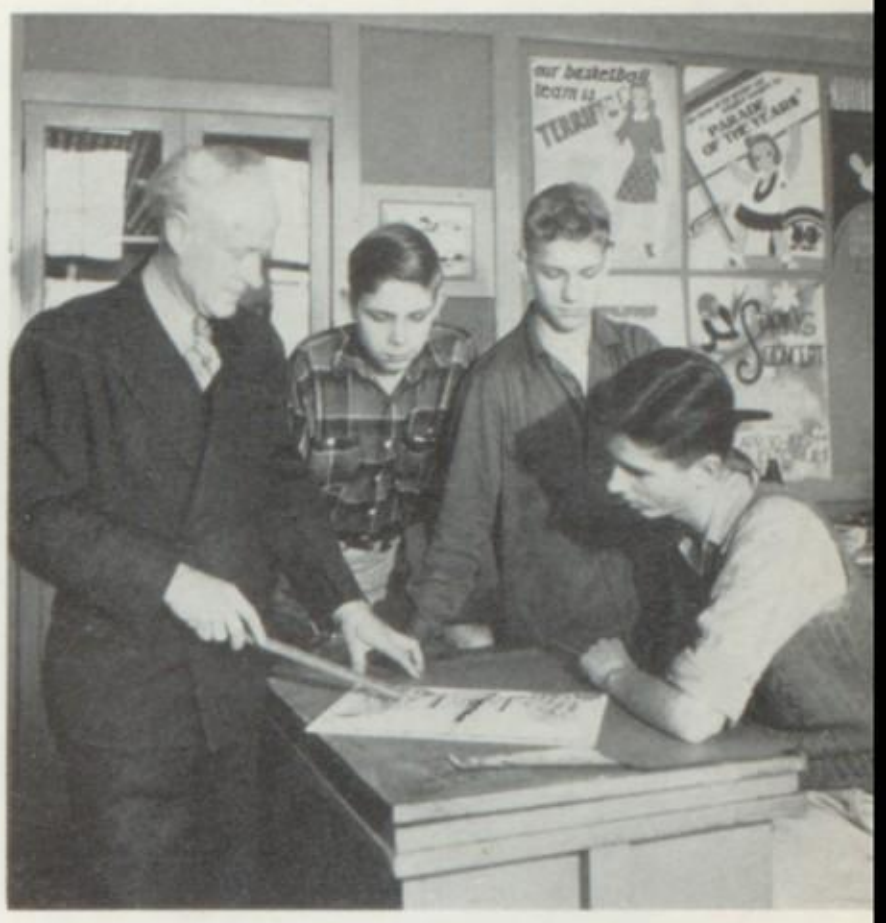
Off the Record...

The "lull after the storm" finds Lenore Thornton, editor, and Mrs. Katherine Olsen, adviser, absorbing their quota of Vitamin D.

Spring brings sunshine, laughter, and the 1945 Shingle on which the following Seniors worked so diligently: Back Row—Richard Larsen, Alice Bean, Frances Lucas, and Greta Lien; Front Row—Audrey Wilber, Harold Pelton, and Gene Northfield; absentee, Helen Pekonen.

As you scan this 1945 Shingle you might like to know something of the work and fun that has gone into its production.

There were some hectic times when staff members were in a dither, as on those terrible days of meeting deadlines, and that awful feeling when the picture schedules were upset by an uncooperative weather man. But it was not all hard work, for much merriment enlivened the usual routine. Almost every day we had a good laugh at clever cartoons that popped up in most unexpected places, and at muttering of staff members as they dragged wearily to their seats with rejected copy. Other sources of fun were the discussions on "reducing" or "blowing up" faculty members or letting them "bleed off" or "lie in the gutter."



As the end sheet nears completion, Art Director Orre Nobles points out a necessary change to Shingle artists: Richard Mayo, Jerome Hoberg, and Art Hansen. Absentee: Bill Johnson.

Much of the success of the year was due to our adviser, Mrs. "K," who was a source of inspiration at all times, and, who because of her constant efforts to keep us enthusiastic and on the job, was affectionately dubbed the "whip," likewise, I, as editor, acquired the title of the "junior whip." Praiseworthy, too, was the work of Mr. Nobles, art adviser, and his staff, and our student photographers who gave so unstintingly of their time.

Just as this, our 1945 Shingle, was made possible by the united efforts of our staff, so we hope the Allied Nations will, through unity, achieve ultimate victory.

The Galley

The statement, "They're locked in the Morgue," might have presented a weird picture to an outsider, but to a member of the Talisman staff it was all part of the daily lingo.

There was never a dull moment as the Talisman toilers scurried about and wrote stories, counted headline units, or corrected proof returned from the printers. Behind a stack of tentative schedules, dummies, assignment sheets, and old newspapers, the editors worked feverishly against time to make certain the presses rolled on schedule. The pages were set up on Tuesday night at the printers, where the page editors had to be on hand to make any necessary corrections, and to see that their page was complete.

Numerous interviews with celebrities of the stage and screen were the year's special features. Among these were Marian Anderson, Richard Crooks, Paul Robeson, and Robert Taylor.

Highlight of the year for these super scoopers was the annual Talisman Banquet. Mingled emotions of sadness and joy were felt at this affair as the first semester staff turned over the paper to their successors. The staff consisted of Miss Irva Knuppenburg, adviser; Jean Miller and Norma Greene, editors; and the Newswriting classes.

To those who deserve it, recognition should be given. The Honor Society served this purpose and also provided an incentive for Ballard to seek greater academic success. Membership requirements were high, yet a greater number of students joined this year than usual; many with even more than the required number of points. Besides giving adequate attention to regular school work, a number of these industrious students were outstanding in extracurricular activities.

Although they received special notice and extra privileges on the traditional "Honor Society Day," the real aim of every member was greater scholastic achievement and his ultimate goal was to earn the one hundred eight points necessary for permanent ownership of the coveted Torch Pin.

Behind all Honor Society affairs was the guiding hand of Miss Nicholson who advised the officers and members in carrying on the activities of the organization.

Harmony Highlights . . .

The Boys' Senior Glee reached great perfection this year due to the sincere desire of the entire group to attain the best in harmony. Everyone agreed that the results produced showed a thorough knowledge in the fundamentals of good music.

The Boys' Double Quartet was a small group of talented boys chosen from the glee club to do their musical bit for the P.T.A., school assemblies, and outside clubs. Conducting both groups, Miss Charlton and Mr. Smith displayed expert leadership.

Sweet and Low . . .

"They sing beautifully," was the comment of all listeners, after having heard the Triple Trio sing a number. Their voices, trained by constant practice, were blended to make one of the most outstanding musical features of the school.

Well presented music is always in demand—that is the reason the Girls' Senior Glee was so popular at all performances. The harmony produced by both of these groups was pleasing due to the constant efforts of Miss Charlton and Mr. Smith.

An advanced music class known as the A Cappela Choir proved its ability in the many outstanding performances given this year. Their carefully blended voices added much interest to the Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies, and the fact that this group had many requests to sing in community affairs showed that their excellence was widely recognized. The programs included singing for the University Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, the Chamber of Commerce Luncheon, KRSC Singing Schools program, and the Washington Educational Association. The musical knowledge and enjoyment gained from the work in this department well rewarded the students for their efforts. As always, the careful direction of Miss Charlton and Mr. Smith gave the choir the "needed guidance."

Musical Maestroes . . .

Musically talented personalities of Ballard worked diligently to provide the school with one of its most important features, the orchestra. Students eager for fundamental training in professional music found this class exceptionally useful in meeting their desires. The aim of Mr. Smith, director, was to see that every student became better acquainted with the best in tone and quality. Many different types of music were studied, including classical, interpretive, and popular.

The ever-increasing popularity of this group can be attributed to the smiling and patient conductor, Mr. Smith, the well-equipped music room, and the general ambition of those in the orchestra to better themselves.

Looking back over the past year, we recall that many successful programs and assemblies were presented at Ballard. The Senior play last spring, "Don't Take My Penny," ably directed by Mrs. Stronach, was a regular riot of laughs, love, and excitement. The next big feature "Talent Time," our annual vodvil, was held this fall. Due to the resourcefulness of Mr. Speck, the producer of the show, it differed from previous presentations in that it was a variety of unrelated acts, all of which were well received. As the year rolled on, radio station KIRO presented four of our students in the "Forum of the Air." In addition to these events there were many dramatic skits presented at bond drives, and the Junior, Senior, and Sophomore assemblies, which were directed by the class advisers. Booth Tarkington's latest play, "The Fighting Littles," a story based on the troubles of the Little family, was selected by Mrs. Stronach as this season's production.

Check and Double-check . . .

Working in the office was valuable experience for the office and attendance clerks. Miss Ryder and Miss Hanquet saw that these students were kept busy learning to file, to operate the switchboard, and answer questions pertaining to school matters.

Cooperating with Mr. Pease and Miss Rowe, the auditorium clerks kept the records clear by checking the seating charts and attending to excuses. The efficient help of these girls was invaluable in handling the large study hall group.

Mid-day Menu Makers . . .

Famous for both satisfying and economical meals, the Beaver Hollow Tearoom took pleasure in serving the faculty and students of Ballard High School. Miss Dodge worked earnestly with tearoom helpers so that patrons could enjoy delicious luncheons.

"What's cooking?" Only the best in food could result from the careful planning of Mrs. Brest and the hard work of the lunchroom helpers. All lunches were served under a non-profit system which aimed to give the best food at the lowest cost.

Mrs. Van Ness, P. T.A. President, cuts the anniversary cake at the annual Founders Day Meeting while the teachers and faculty look on.

They Also Serve . . .

The parents and teachers found the P.T.A. an ideal organization for promoting better understanding and cooperation between the home and school. At the regular business and social meetings conducted by the president, Mrs. Van Ness, the members enjoyed educational discussions presented by students, interesting films, and guest speakers. In addition to these meetings, the P.T.A. sponsored the Girls' Bowling Club and the ever-popular P.T.A. dances.

P. T.A. EXECUTIVE COUNCIL—Second Row: Mrs. Bendickson, Mrs. Burnett, Mrs. Breivik. First Row: Mrs. Bivins, Mrs. Jacobsen, Mrs. Van Ness, Mrs. Kindberg, Mrs. Gerard, Mrs. Molitor.

Working for Victory . . .

"Do your part," might well be the slogan of the War Activities committee, a group which was formed last fall to handle Ballard's service projects. Under the direction of the chairman, Pat MacDonald, and with the advice of Mrs. Henton, this organization supervised the Tin Drive, the collection for the Community War Chest, the March of Dimes, and the Junior Red Cross. The aim of the Bond Drive, the committee's most important activity, was the purchase of a B-29.

Figuring for Fun . . .

Once a week, stamp day found each advisory humming with business as efficient clerks took charge of selling activity stamps. Those students who possessed stamp books were enabled to enjoy a host of school activities and pleasures at either a reduced price or free of charge.

The various projects sponsored by this plan included basketball and football games, the weekly Talisman, plays, musical performances, and at the end of the year the coveted Shingle. The numerous details involved in handling the stamps were capably administered by Mr. Speck and his staff.

Neatness, Their Virtue . . .

The locker and clean-up committees fostered by the Senate and Student Council had the responsibility of keeping the halls and grounds "spic and span." The neatness of the building throughout the year showed the constant efforts of this energetic group to carry out their duties faithfully.

Travel books, murder mysteries, and reference materials are but a few of the demands Miss Lytle and Mrs. Cody must satisfy. With access to such a complete library no inquiry was ever left unanswered. The library clerks also contributed valuable services by keeping the shelves in order and checking the books in and out.

"One for the money, two for the show," so off to the noon-movie you go. Once there you saw an entertaining film, prepared for your enjoyment through the efforts of the Movie Crew.

"Testing, Testing," were the words heard when Ballard's mikes were in need of repair. The members of the Mike Crew were always on hand to do a thorough job. Much of the success of the two groups was due to the guidance of Mr. Whitehead.

MIKE CREW—Second Row: Bob Moore, Lloyd Benson, Mr. Whitehead, Don Sizemore. First Row: Bob Bivins, Frank Bradley, Russ King.

Our Border Patrol . . .

Though danger may have lurked around the Ballard grounds, it didn't have a chance with the Safety Patrol on guard. The patrol, headed by Mr. Speck, was on the job, rain or shine.

"You'd better be good!" The Field Patrol, directed by Mr. Nardin, acted as a group of plainclothesmen, collecting tickets and keeping order at the school games. The result of their alertness was plainly seen in the lack of student casualties.

Props and Propaganda . . .

A peep behind scenes during Ballard's performances would show the stage crew and Mr. Payne in action, setting the stage and operating curtains and lights. Weeks of planning and scenery building preceded every production so that "the show might go on."

Wholesale arguing was the keynote of the Debate Club. The coaches, Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Walker, directed this year's team in lively discussions of the employment problem. After hours of practice the debators met in competitive debates with contestants from other schools.

Brawn and Brain . . .

The Tri-B, a group of Ballard's lettermen, was directed by Coach Koenig. These athletes not only furthered Ballard's sports standing, but also kept order in the lunchroom throughout the year and served at the Mother-Daughter Banquet.

To meet the demand for trained radar men, a club was formed by Mr. Voeks, Mr. Whitehead, Mr. McConnell, and Mr. Glaser. The first of its kind in Seattle, it helped members pass the Eddy Test by giving special instruction in physics, radio, and shop.

Salute to the South . . .

La Tertulia, directed by Miss Russell, offered the many students of the Spanish classes an opportunity to increase their knowledge of Latin American peoples and customs. Their meetings featured consuls, visitors from south of the border, movies and reports on Spanish subjects.

The high spot of the year was the Pan-American assembly with a program which consisted of guest speakers, skits by boys and girls from the Spanish classes, and music in the Spanish style.

Scribblers and Quibblers . . .

The Forum Club discussed many important local and universal problems in their monthly meetings. The views and opinions of the members were broadened by consideration of the subjects selected by Miss E. Woods, the adviser.

As a means of developing their literary ability, the Quill Club members, with the help and direction of Miss A. Woods, wrote a number of plays and stories. These creative writings were then improved through examination and criticism by the students.

Ballard's athletes managed to capture only one championship in the past athletic year. Varsity gridiron warriors broke even in eight games, the brightest spot of the season being the Roosevelt game, in which the Beavers handed the Teds their only defeat. It was the Beaver sophomore football squad which grabbed off Ballard's only championship. The "Baby Beavers" rolled through their schedule undefeated, untied, and unscored-on. With a squad bolstered by six returning lettermen, Coach Bendele piloted the Red and Black basketballers to fourth place in its regular schedule, and before a crowd of 11,000 basketball enthusiasts at the University Pavilion defeated Queen Anne to take third place in the All-City playoffs.

As the Shingle goes to press, spring sports are just getting under way. However, the outlook for them is better than usual. Coach Koenig has great hopes for his baseball nine, which consists of virtually a full team of lettermen returning from last year's fourth place team. Trackmen from Ballard had a good season in 1944, taking fourth place in the All-City meet, but veterans will be scarce for '45. The golf and tennis coaches were fortunate in having experience a-plenty. Coach Byron Payne's divot-diggers are, at this time, odds-on favorites to take the championship, while the racketeers, under Coach Warren Hodge, can be counted on to finish near the top.

PIGSKIN PARADE . . .

Several veterans returned to do battle for Ballard on the gridiron this season. The line shaped up as one of the toughest in the league, and the backfield one of the smoothest. However, even the greatest of teams cannot win when the luck is against them, as was the case of the Beavers of '44. In their first game, statistics prove, Ballard was by far the strongest team; yet Garfield triumphed by sixteen points. Twice again, Ballard outplayed the foe, but bowed in defeat. The close of the season found the Beavers with a .500 percentage, but, most important, they broke the Roosevelt jinx, by handing the Teddies their only defeat of the year. Mel Davis, Ballard halfback, was a unanimous choice for All-City honors, while tackle Al Woodhouse and center Carl Rice were chosen on one All-Star eleven. Glenn Brewster, a guard, who sparked the team all year, was awarded the Inspiration Award by his team-mates.

By breaking even in their eight games, the Beavers from Ballard finished in fifth place in the prep football league. Coach Bendele's rugged line and letterman backfield were plagued by bad luck all season. In the season opener, the hefty but inexperienced Ballard club completely outplayed the Garfield Bulldogs, but wound up on the short end of a 28-12 score. The following week again found the Beavers in a tough game, this time against the defending champions from Lincoln. Stopping a Ballard drive on the one-foot line, the Lynx pushed over a pair of touchdowns in the second half to win, 14-0.

The game with Broadway was a repetition of the first game, as Ballard's offense was by far superior to the Tigers', but Broadway came from behind to win, 14-12. Tired of dropping games, the Red and Black rose up and smacked down Franklin, 13-0. Two weeks later the Beavers ran up against the high-flying Roughriders from Roosevelt, who were sporting an undefeated, untied record. Paced by All-City halfback Mel Davis and Captain Al Woodhouse, the Beavers upset the dope bucket, overwhelming Roosevelt by a 7-0 score. Ballard dropped from the win column the next week, as the hard-running West Seattle team dished out a 7-0 defeat. The gallant Cleveland eleven fell in the wake of the charging Beavers the following week, 31-7. Finishing the season in a blaze of glory, the boys from Ballard swamped Queen Anne, 14-0.

SECONDS . . . THIRDS

Ballard came through with a strong second team this year. Fighting through a six game schedule, they won four, tied one, and lost one. The scores, opponent first, were: Garfield 0-7; Lincoln 27-6; Broadway 0-7; Franklin 0-26; Roosevelt 0-0; and West Seattle 0-12.

Football days at Ballard will have a boom during the next two years, if the record of the 1944 thirds is any indication of future performances. Under Coach John Koenig, they easily won the championship, remaining undefeated, untied, and unscored upon. The scores, opponent first, were: Garfield 0-20; Lincoln 0-13; Broadway 0-6; Franklin 0-13; Roosevelt 0-7; and West Seattle 0-13.

INTRAMURALS . . . MANAGERS

INTRAMURALS—Herman Johnsen, Jim Young, Juny Martensen, Dick Duea, and John Peck, the Intramural Basketball Champs, receive a few pointers from Mr. Nardin, their coach.

Directed by Mr. McCrea and Mr. Nardin, the intramurals program has finished another active sports year. Highlights of the year were the basketball tournament, and formation of the Intramural Athletic Council, an organization which conducts all intramural sports, and strives to promote good sportsmanship and individual skill.

Undoubtedly, much of the credit for the success of our athletic teams should go to those hard-working individuals, the managers. Cleaning up, issuing equipment and preparing the field for the game; all fall to their list of worries. Yet, they perform their duties with pride and satisfaction.

HOOP SQUAD

Ballard's basketball team, this year, was really the hot and cold team of the league. When they were cold, the Beavers were just another team, but when they got hot . . . oh boy! The pre-season prognosticators picked Ballard as a first division club, and they proved to be right, as the Red and Black wound up in third place. The season of 1945 was really a thriller-diller as the scores show. The results, Ballard first, were: West Seattle 35-39, 43-37; Cleveland 40-27, 24-28; Queen Anne 31-36, 27-35; Roosevelt 25-40, 36-39; Broadway 26-20, 41-32; Garfield 35-24, 47-30.

The finish of the regular season saw Lincoln and Roosevelt tied for first place, Queen Anne third, with Ballard and Broadway tied for fourth. In an elimination game, Ballard won a playoff spot as the Beavers ran over Broadway, 37-24. Over ten thousand fans jammed the U. of W. Pavilion to see the prep basketball playoffs, in which Lincoln edged Roosevelt to win the city crown. In a preliminary game, Ballard took third place by winning an easy 34-27 victory from Queen Anne. By virtue of their city championship, Lincoln's Lynx became Seattle's first entry in the statewide tournament. The Lynx bowled over all their foes to win the state championship.

CLEMENTS

SECOND TEAM—Ted Hvattum, Ed Gruger, Roy Ekrom, Bob Clements, Dave Johansen, Herman Johnsen, John Peck.

Winning nine and losing three, the aggressive first team replacements fought their way to second place honors. This year's team, averaging 6 feet 2 inches in height, was the tallest that Coach Bendele has ever developed. The scores, opponents first, were: West Seattle, 27-37, 34-43; Cleveland, 23-34, 14-37; Queen Anne, 7-31, 34-20; Roosevelt, 34-18, 45-24; Broadway, 20-32, 31-35; Garfield, 16-30, 20-29. Coach Koenig built the third team into a fighting and driving outfit that continually placed team spirit above individual starring. These coordinated efforts were the major factors that enabled this squad, lacking in height, to come in fifth place, winning six and losing six.

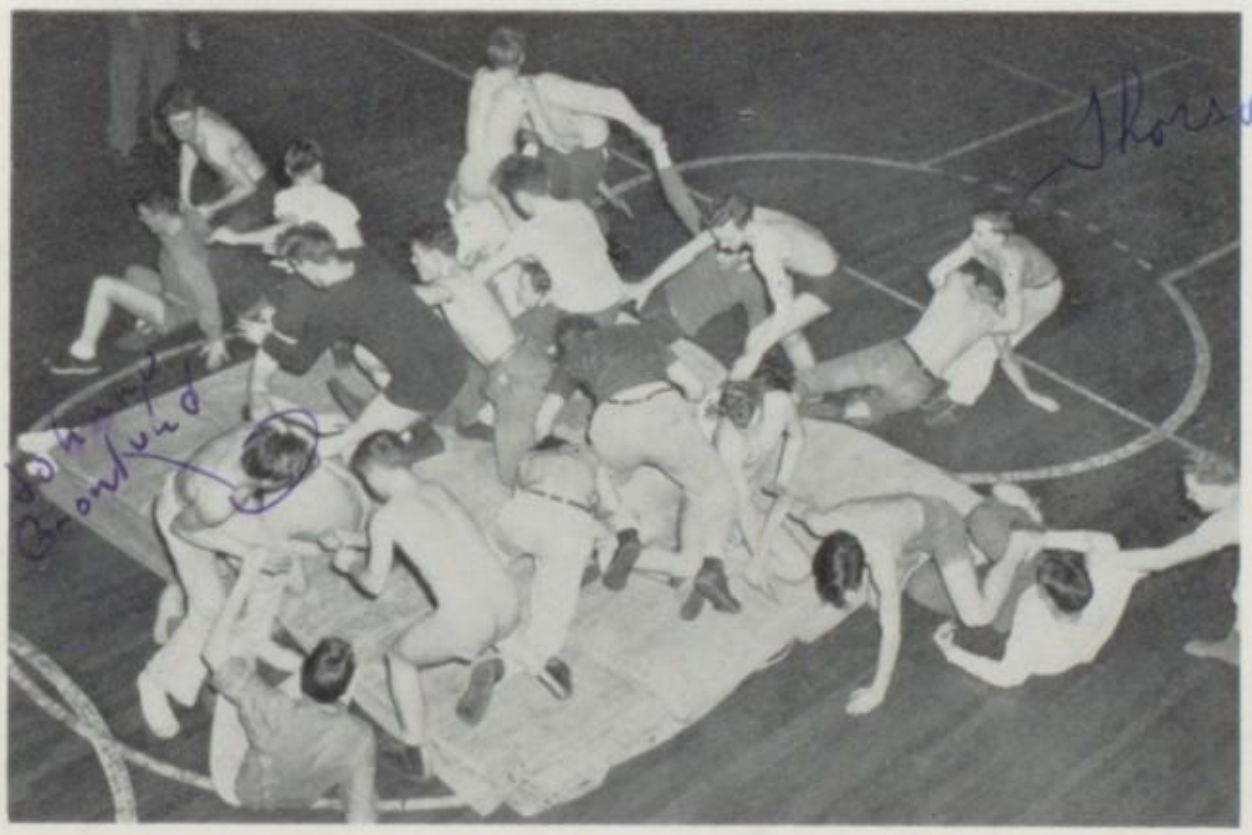
COMMANDOS

Husky Seniors carry each other on their backs, the objective—to develop strong chest and back muscles.

The huge success of this year's commando classes was due not only to the fine leadership of the Coach, but also to the enthusiasm of the boys. Under the direction of Mr. McCrea, Senior boys were put through a very rugged physical education program. Included were activities such as body contact sports, strength and endurance tests and hurdling the barriers in the newly-erected obstacle course. The Senior boys readily accepted the daily workouts and body conditioning program, realizing that as the course progressed they were becoming more and more prepared for their coming military life in the various branches of the armed forces.



Rugged activities like these give graduating Seniors the strong bodies and the aggressive spirit necessary for the armed forces.

Ballard Places Fourth in '44 Season

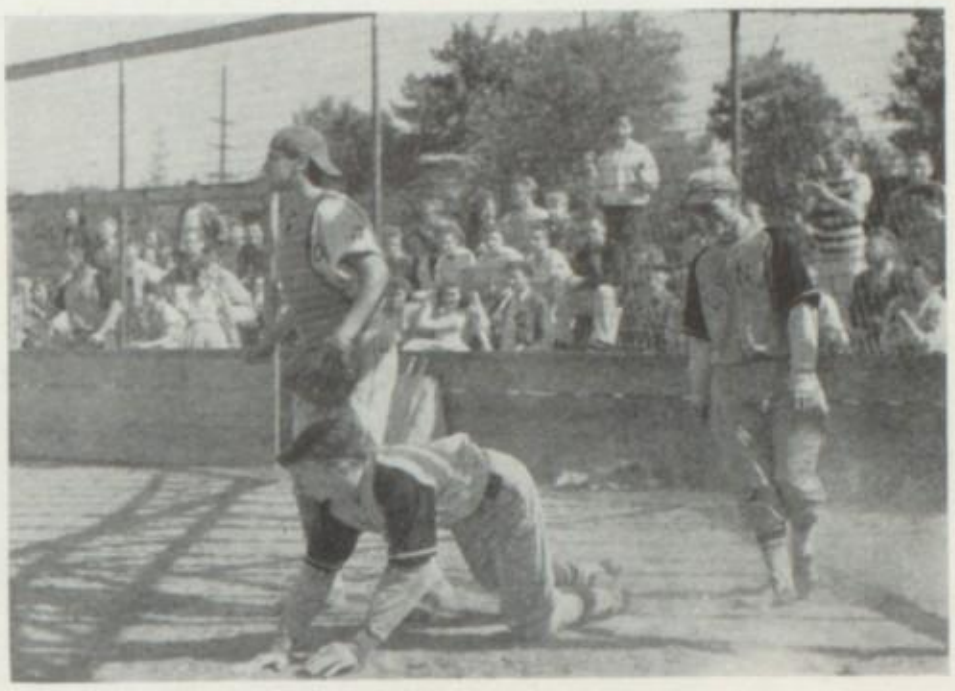
During the 1944 baseball season, Ballard won only seven of the sixteen games played. Yet, the hard-hitting Beavers were tabbed as the giant killers of the league by wrecking Queen Anne's and nearly ruining Franklin's title hopes by two late season upsets.

Coach John Koenig's dreams were realized this spring as nine lettermen, and the most promising rookie material to be seen in recent years, returned for the 1945 season.

A double play is completed as Les Wilson stretches to take the throw from second.

Beaver Baseball Hopes High for 1945



In a 1944 game played at Lincoln, a Lynx slides into home. Ballard's catcher is Cot Rice.

Thankful appreciation should be expressed to Mr. Hal Olsen who piloted the fire-ball second team to runners-up for the '44 second team baseball crown. This gave Coach Koenig more opportunity to develop his returning lettermen for this year's campaign. Following in the footsteps of the varsity squad, the third team fielded the strongest nine in many years, and under the painstaking guidance of their coach, they molded into a first class squad. These boys, along with last year's second team, pressed the lettermen for every inch of ground covered.

Getting an early start, an intramural baseball program was set up with four teams playing a round-robin tournament. With last year's experience and the pre-season practice, it seems a virtual cinch that Ballard's baseball team should finish higher this spring than the fourth place tie of 1944.

Up, up, and over! Carl Griffith goes sky high during vaulting practice.

Although Ballard's successful track team of '44 was rather crippled by graduation, yet Coach Bendele's prospects for this spring were heightened by the large and enthusiastic 1945 turnout. Experience was the essential quality lacking among the boys this year, since very few have had any previous training.

The Beaver's 1944 track team, while running a "dark horse" all through the season, placed fourth in the All-City track meet with twenty points, which was only twenty points behind the leader. Ballard took two third places, in the 100 and 440, and a second in the low hurdles. The big moment of the meet came when the Beavers cindermen copped first place in the high jump (5′ 10″), and in the broad jump (20′ 10¼″).

Though the outlook for 1945 is not promising, you can be sure that a hard-fighting Beaver track team will be battling to keep Ballard among the top teams again this year.

The close of the 1944 golf season saw Coach Byron Payne's divot diggers in third place, with five wins and two losses. Because of the number of returning lettermen, and the new crop of talented rookies, Ballard seems to be a sure-fire bet to take the prep golf crown this spring.

Although winning only one match during last season's competition, Coach Hodge's tennis team returns virtually intact. With experience and determination to better their 1944 standing, the Beaver netmen should develop into a very tough outfit to beat as the '45 season progresses.

Tennis Team, standing: Linden, Blue, Ekrom, Martell, Loveless, Wassell.
Kneeling: Edwards, Schjelland, Wade, Linden, Allen.

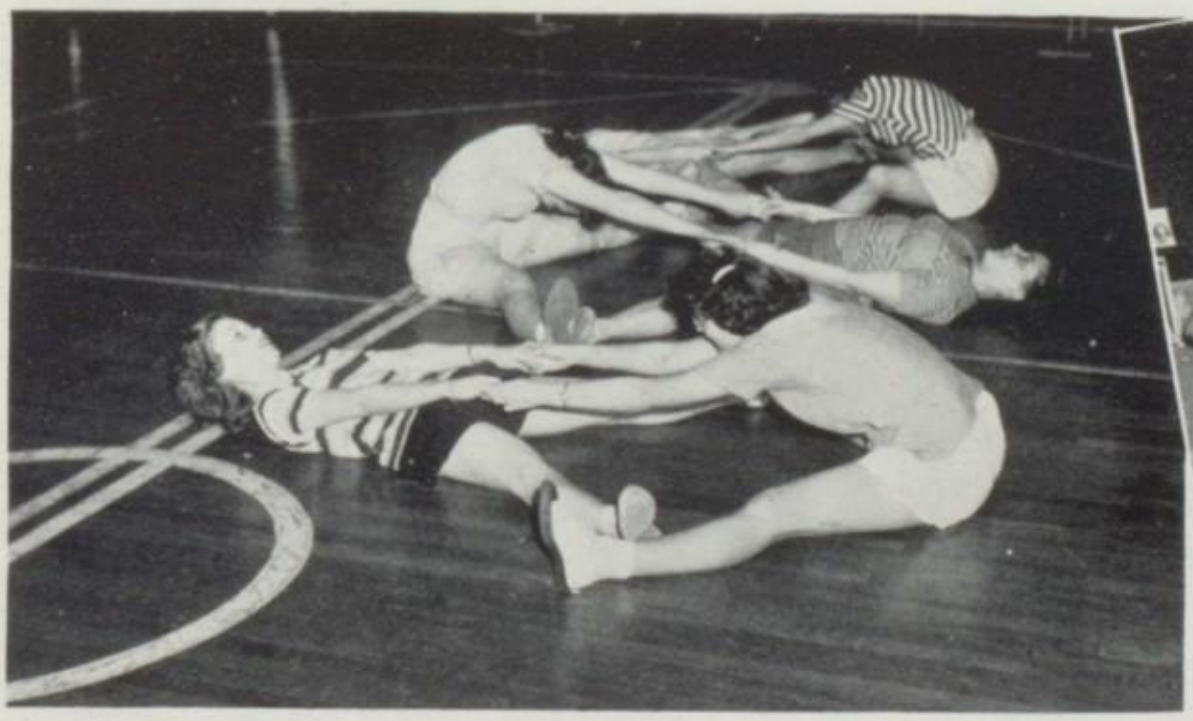
Cutting a Fine Figure . . .

Taking advantage of the mild weather, several girls of a Soph. P. E. class take time out for a game of croquet.

Gym activities started out with a bang last fall, when every girl was weighed and measured and records of "tell all" endurance tests were made. From the information secured, the physical education program was revised and a new class, dubbed "adapted activities," was introduced by Miss Cornish and Miss Lewis, our gym instructors, who led girls in lively drills and practice along the line of individual needs. Realizing the benefits of this new type of training, these energetic lasses entered into the work wholeheartedly, although there were occasional complaints of aching muscles.

After a year's emphasis upon personal fitness, all the girls felt much better physically because of this carefully planned gym program.

Left: Even though these smiling lasses perform easily for the cameraman, muscle stretching in this manner isn't as simple as it looks. Right: Two Ballard girls part with their life-time secrets as their true weight is determined by Miss Cornish and Miss Lewis.



BUSY BIG "B's"

At an athletic breakfast early in the fall, thirty girls were initiated into full membership and now Ballard's Big "B" has the distinction of being the largest and most active girls' letter club in the city. Each of these girls has spent her share of hours after school in the gym taking part in intramural turnouts. The process of earning a Big B offered the girls plenty of vigorous exercise and opportunity for friendly competition. Not only did it develop a keen interest in sports but helped the players win friendships as well as championships.

The Big "B's" sponsored many special activities, such as making and selling pompoms for football games. In cooperation with the Sixth War Loan Drive they inaugurated the weekly sale of War Stamps in advisories. Another project carried out through the year was the publication of their pamphlet "Big B Buzzings."

At Halloween the mothers were invited to a party where they were entertained by get-together games, dancing, and a demonstration in the art of ducking for apples. Santa Claus was the guest of honor at the traditional Christmas party and added much hilarity to that afternoon of fun.

With June came the final assembly of the year and the solemn farewell luncheon for the senior members. This was a serious day for those who were leaving, but they were cheered by the fact that there remained an enthusiastic group to carry on the traditions of Big "B."

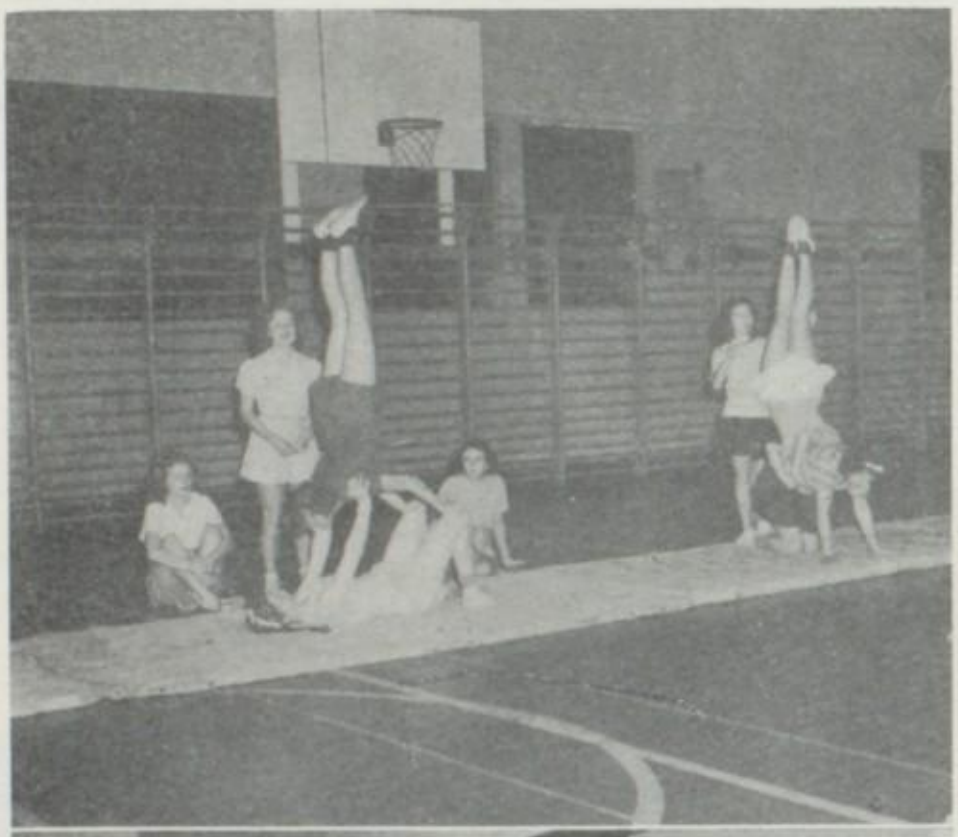
Conquering the Athletic Field

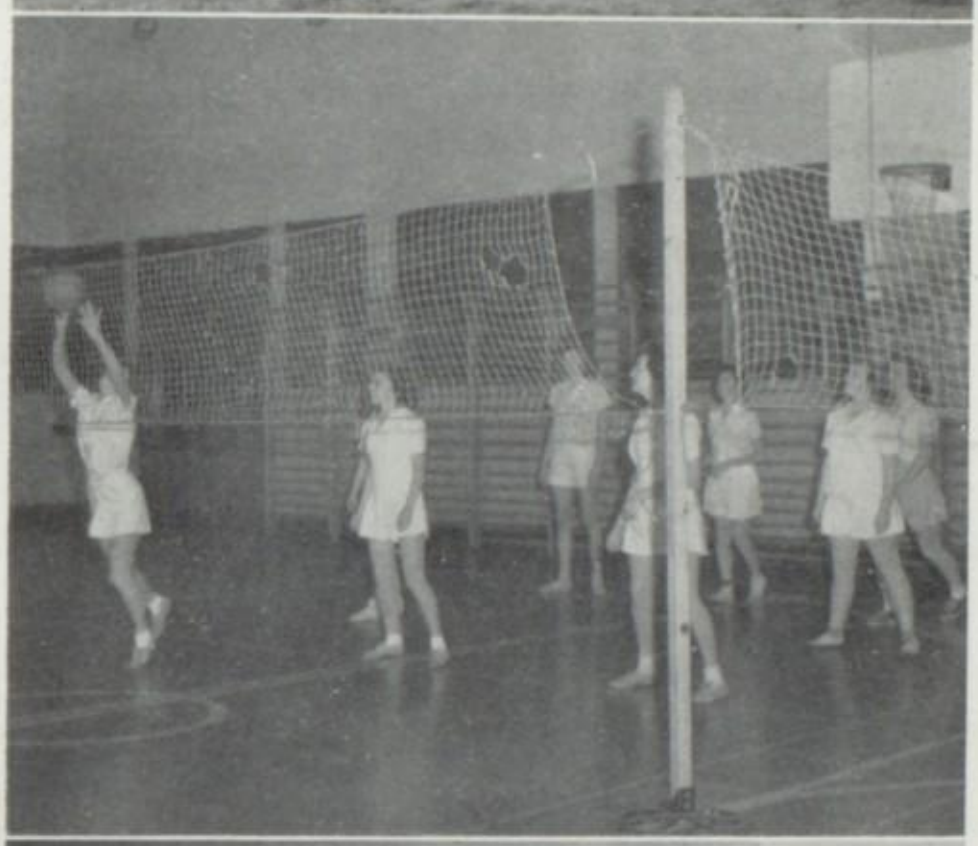
Our dazzling damsels have starred again! They excelled with "vim, vigor, and vitality" in the extensive program of the Physical Education department. From dawn till dusk, there was no time when activities in the girls' gym were not in full swing. Before and after school, tennis fans were always found on the courts displaying their smashing services and cannonball returns. Tennis hours were regulated by the weather, but during the rainy months they became ardent supporters of table tennis and badminton. In their respective seasons, speedball, volleyball, basketball, and baseball each had a period of great popularity.



Upper: Girls in the tumbling class spend most of their time getting a topsy-turvy view of the world. Lower: With both paddles awaiting it that ball hasn't a chance.

Center: Football heroes are taking it easy while the girls do the work for a change.

During the school day, Beaverettes were busy in individual sports and special activity classes. Peppy music and enthusiastic calls echoed through the corridors whenever the popular old-time folk and square-dance class was in session down in the gym. Another class which attracted many enthusiasts was archery. Hours of practice with the bow and arrow gave these "feminine William Tells" the skill and accuracy necessary to hit a bull's eye. Then, too, there was tumbling, where the most nimble and agile girls learned to make triads and turn cartwheels — a class that really kept them on their toes.



Upper: Speedball offers many opportunities to stre-e-e-tch for the ball. Center: All eyes are intent upon the volley ball as it is sent flying over the net. Lower: "Scene" on the basketball floor as two players struggle in vain for possession of that elusive ball.

To arms! to arms! ye brave!

The avenging sword unsheathe!

March on! march on! all hearts resolved

On victory or death!

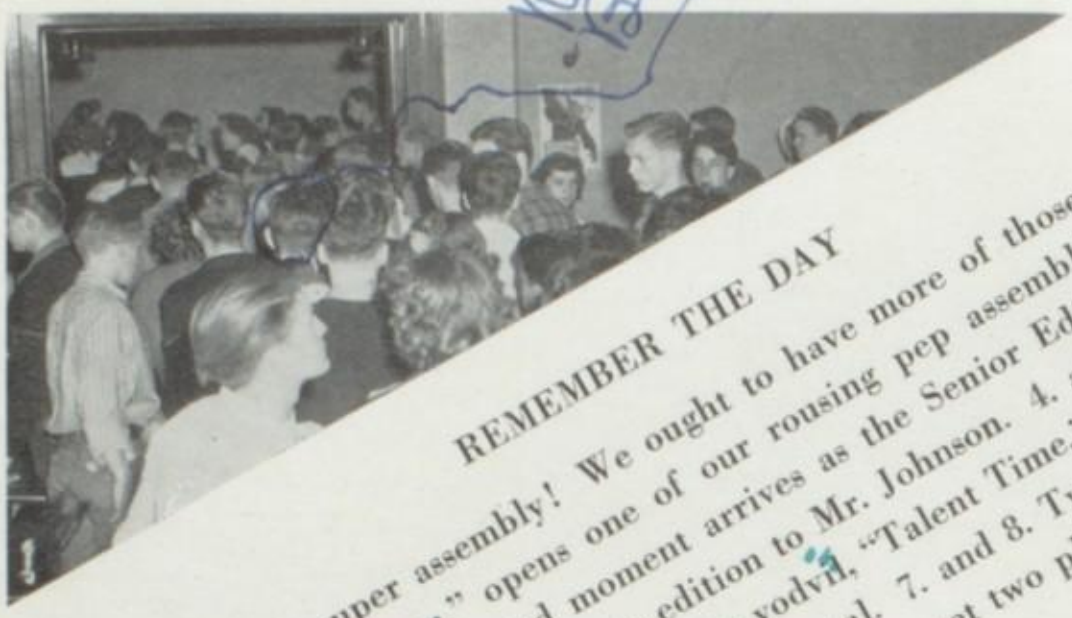
SHOOTING THE BREEZE

1. Got any pictures for the Shingle, boys? 2. Mrs. Olsen is quite "handy" to have around. 3. Planning to sweep someone off his feet, Bev, or just cleaning up before Christmas vacation? 4. And we always thought you were such a little angel, Bob—your friend's cute too. 5. Our Big "B" president discusses sports with the girls. 6. Shingle staff members study the art of photography (?). 7. It sure is fun passing out Talismans! 8. "Come on in boys, the water's fine." 9. "What's the meaning of this?" asks Tom—the Boys' Club officers do their bit by working in the lunchroom for a week.

RHYTHM AND RIOT

1. Tommy (the eye) Taylor, looks around as Jim and Audie have the situation "well in hand." 2. You're just the guy that can do it too, Flat Top. 3. Brita and Virgie display a little fancy leg art, at the Junior Assembly. Hoddy toddy! 4. "Strange Fruit" is the "berries" with Pat and Lucille. 5. Ballard's own Pat MacDonald, on the ball as usual. 6. "Dancing in the Dark." 7. If you like super sundaes, March's can certainly dish them up. 8. Now Lewie, is that trip necessary? 9. What's attracting all the attention, girls? My you have lovely legs, Frances—all three of them.



REMEMBER THE DAY

1. Boy, was that a super assembly! We ought to have more of those—about five a week. 2. "We want a touchdown," opens one of our rousing pep assemblies—Mickey sure gets a work-out. 3. The long-awaited moment arrives as the Senior Editor of the 1944 Shingle, Dottie Osborne, presents the Alaskan edition to Mr. Johnson. 4. and 5. Eilleen Meadows vs. Bill Goleeke—the featured singers in the vodvil, "Talent Time." 6. Our staff photographers get a sneak preview of the vodvil dress rehearsal. 7. and 8. Typifying Ballard's Bond Drive, Randy climbs to the top. Why, Randy, how'd you get two places at once? Always trying to get in the pictures.

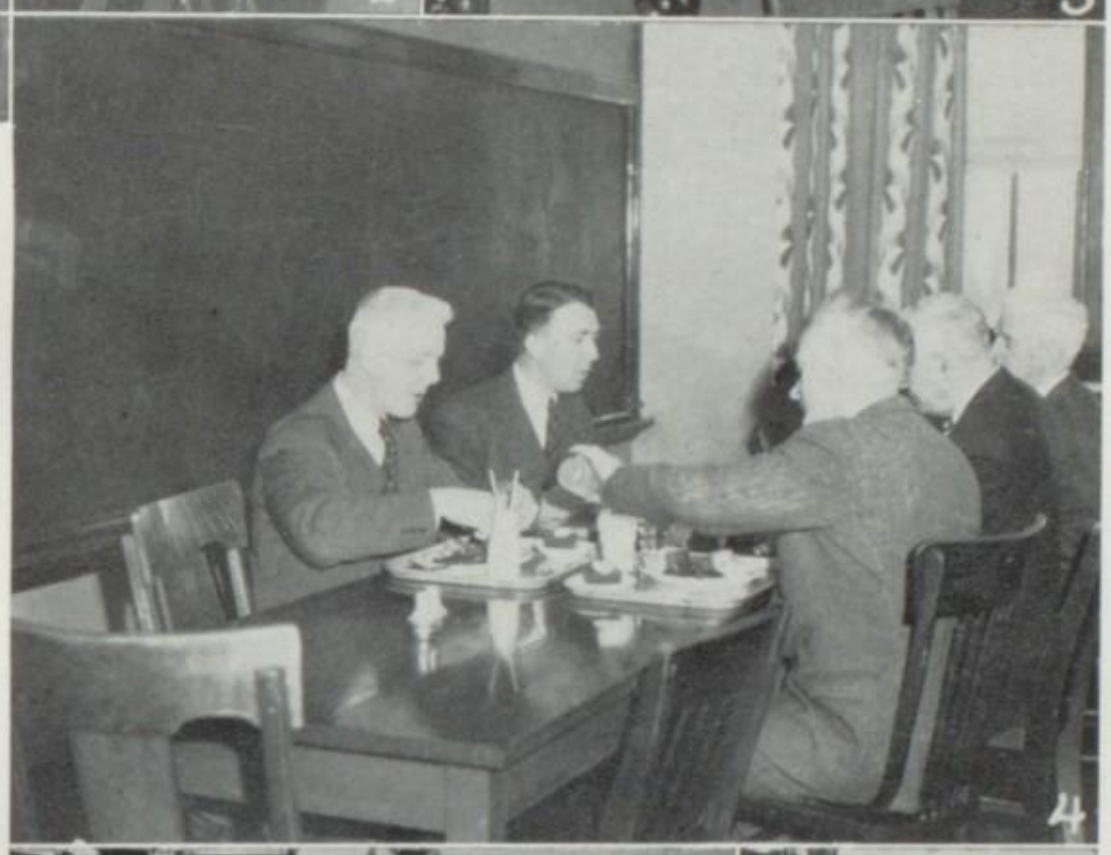
GAZING AT STARS

1. Two marines stand at attention as our service flag is dedicated to Ballard students in uniform. 2. "Fag" adds his bit of humor to the Senior Assembly by forcibly removing the better half of Mr. Johnson's tie. 3. Miss Charlton introduces the religious numbers that were sung by the Choir at the Thanksgiving Day Assembly. 4. Everybody got a big kick out of that hot trio, Robin, Denton and Jim, when they had to sing "Home on the Range." 5. Juniors really show us how they get behind the bond drive in the Sixth War Loan. 6. Ballardites under the sway of the Guardsmen. They're really solid.

FACULTY ON PARADE

1. Turn about's fair play as members of the faculty serve the lunchroom staff—Mr. Van looks like an old hand at waiting on tables. 2. The annual Faculty Tea presents Ballards' best. Even Mr. Taylor and Mr. Nobles attempt plate balancing. 3. But Mr. Pease, how can you say that? Ten months is a long time on tardy roll! ("Signing them up" is his favorite pastime.) 4. Mr. Johnson trips the light-fantastically. 5. Mrs. Wolfe, Mr. McCrea and Mrs. Steinbrook, new members of the faculty, enjoy the Talisman in our new Girls' Club Room. Mrs. Wolfe and Mrs. Steinbrook are both additions to the English Department, and Mr. McCrea is teaching Boys' Senior Gym and Boys' Health Education.

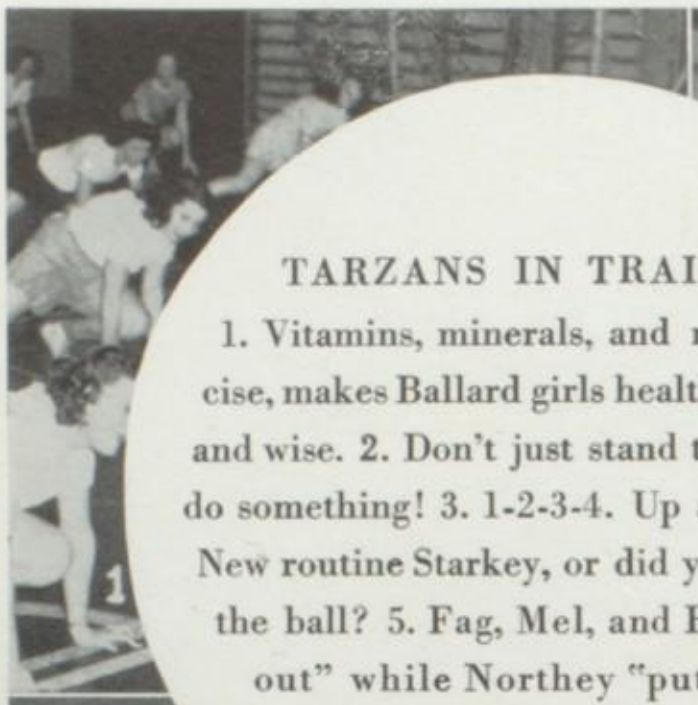


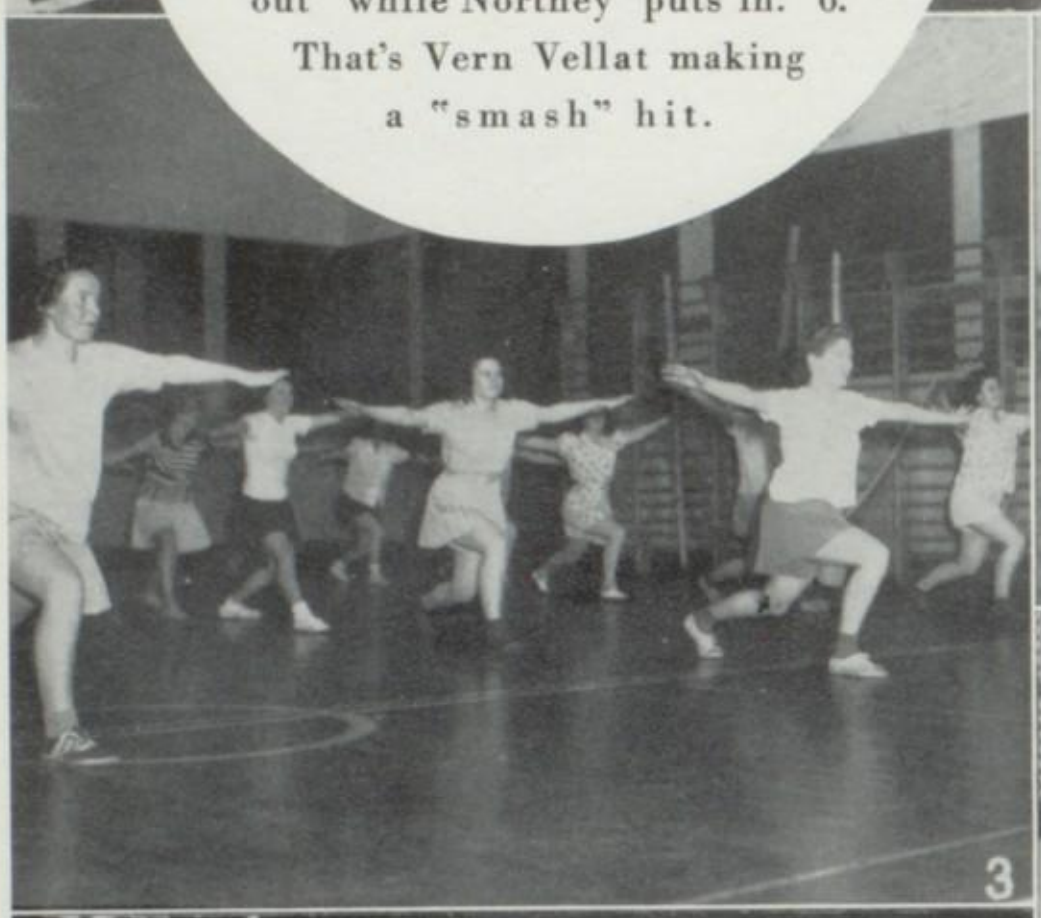
TAKING TIME OUT

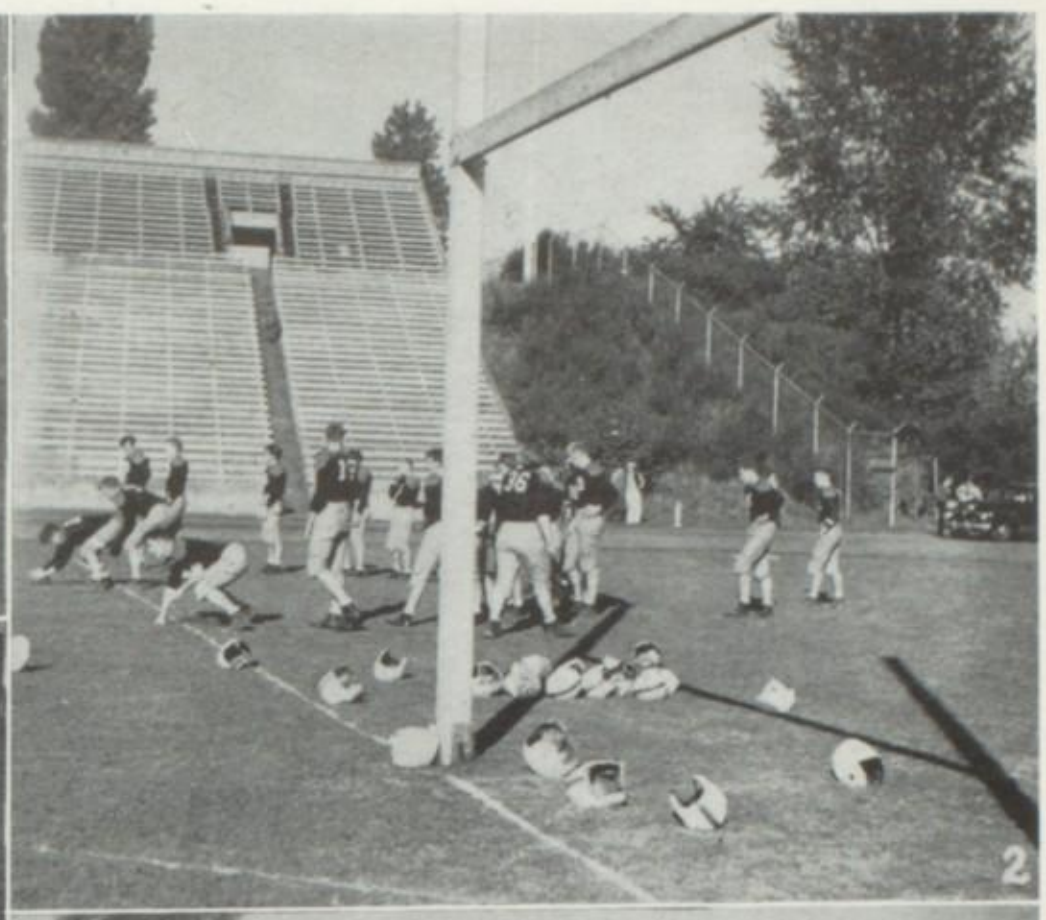
1. Helping to keep those books straight in our library are: Mrs. Cody, and Miss "Let's have it quiet, please" Lytle. 2. It's high time—the fuddy duddy watchmaker, Mr. Smith climbs aloft to see what makes things tick. 3. "What's it all about, Miss Chamberlin?" It must be pretty startling. 4. Members of the faculty digest food to the tune of Dewey vs. Roosevelt. Mr. Walker and Mr. Nobles observe "Health Week" by having their daily glasses of minerals and vitamins. 5. Counting sheep, or American Observer tests, Mr. Taylor? (They bore us too.) 6. Chow time brings Mr. McConnell and Miss Legg for a wee bit of nourishment.

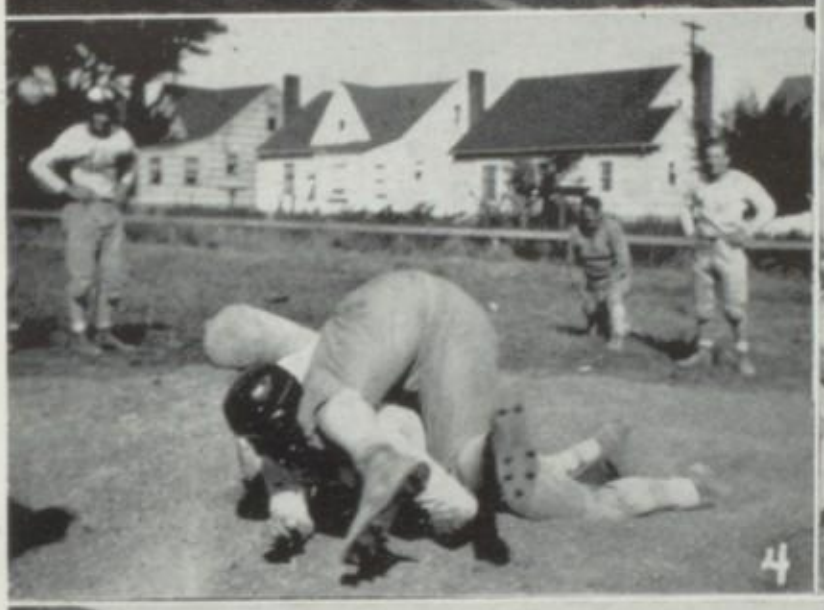
TARZANS IN TRAINING

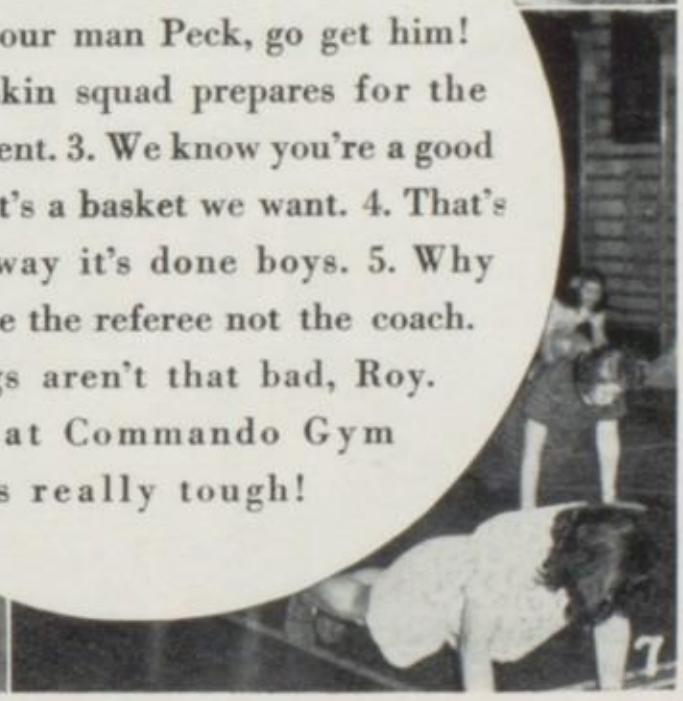
1. Vitamins, minerals, and more exercise, makes Ballard girls healthy, wealthy, and wise. 2. Don't just stand there No. 14 do something! 3. 1-2-3-4. Up and down. 4. New routine Starkey, or did you just kick the ball? 5. Fag, Mel, and Randy "put out" while Northey "puts in." 6. That's Vern Vellat making a "smash" hit.











ON THE BALL

1. That's your man Peck, go get him! 2. Our pigskin squad prepares for the crucial moment. 3. We know you're a good juggler, but it's a basket we want. 4. That's "knot" the way it's done boys. 5. Why Bob! You're the referee not the coach. 6. Things aren't that bad, Roy. 7. That Commando Gym is really tough!

A MERRY LIFE

1. Beavers take time out for nourishment. (Be sure to get your "Wheaties.") 2. Earl, Gilbert (or is it Gerald?) and Rod "string along" with the "yo-yo" fad. 3. Talkin' it up in Senior Alley. (Even during cold winter months, there's never a shortage of hot air here.) 4. "For whom the bell tolls"—It's 3:10—March's here we come! 5. Oh, for the life of a staff photographer! Now look pretty, Rod. 6. Loyal Ballardites buy Beaver stickers from that super salesman, Bob Kirkpatrick. 7. The "cat-walk" offers the students an opportunity to get a breath of fresh air while on their way to the annex.

BUSY BEAVERS BUZZ

1. Members of the Talisman staff seem to be enjoying their luncheon. 2. The kiddies can hardly wait for Santa Claus — or Christmas Vacation. 3. There's a big game cooking. As usual Goleeke's over a rail. 4. Our boys get a big "bang" out of making explosives. They're doing a booming business. 5. At least Bill laughs at his own jokes! Or is he trying to get the photographer's attention? 6. Ready for another hour of mad concentration? Loaded with books, locals enter study hall while Mr. Pease crouches in the corner with the tardy roll slip. 7. C'mon you guys, give us a high one right in the basket!!

WORKING TOGETHER

1. "There must be an easier way to do this," said Betty Koch and Pat Rankin, as they dunked for apples at the Big "B" party, (and they really got dunked!) 2. Locals managed to scrape up a few dimes for the March of Dimes drive. In fact they raised two hundred and thirty-nine dollars. 3. "Our dramatic talent" tries out for the Senior Play, "The Fighting Littles." Crystal Mallory seems pretty happy about it. 4. Ballard extends a welcome hand to all the new Sophomores, besides carefully explaining about the roof garden, swimming pool, and elevator. 5. "Stop that dancin' up there," says the interior decorator of our new Girls' Club Room.

MAKING TIME COUNT

1. Stranger or friend, Beavers always ask, "Will you please sign my Shingle?" 2. A health education class entertains the P.T.A. Lenore Thornton, our worthy editor, presides. Remember, an apple a day——. 3. Senors wait in line to have their pictures taken for the Shingle. Richard looks like he can hardly wait. 4. Five feet seven, shoe size, eleven. Girls get "weighed in" to see if they are eligible for Mid-morning Munchers, the 10:30 nutrition group. 5. Eager Beavers enforce the paper drive. No one can say that they don't do their share toward victory.

THE CLASS OF '47...

Wasted no time getting into the swing of things; what they lacked in experience, they made up in spirit and determination. Several very successful assemblies, each directed by one of the class officers, highlighted the year. The scholastic ability of this young group of "Eager Beavers" was indicated by their large membership in the Honor Society. They excelled in athletics as well; producing a football team with the amazing and enviable record of being unbeaten, untied, and unscored upon.

This up and coming Sophomore class was under the leadership of President Barbara Montgomery, Vice-President Jack McNeese, Reporter Betty McPherron, and Advisers Miss Mary Blanchard and Mr. Don Taylor.

O mighty nation, how you instill,

Well beloved Brazil, our adoration!

Compared with all the other thousands, you appear

By your own nature like a giant free from fear;

Your beauty and your strength reflect your future.

THE CLASS OF '46...

Dynamic, enthusiastic, and light-hearted is just another way of describing this ardent group. Friendly cooperation in all school activities, as well as prominence in athletics, have made the Juniors outstanding. The particular contributions of this spirited class included an assembly held on Class Day plus zealous participation in a War Bond Drive.

With two years behind and a glorious year ahead, every Junior feels that "his Sophomore year was filled with promise, his Junior year with joy, and that his Senior year will be the successful culmination of his high school career."

The class was capably led by: President Pat Rankin, Vice-President Bob Kirkpatrick, Secretary Betty Carlson, and Reporter Ted Akers.

THE CLASS OF '45 . . .

With a proud record of achievement, says a final "Good-bye" to participation in the myriad activities of Ballard High. Just three years ago, as "green" and diffident sophomores, these now high-and-mighty seniors entered the halls for the first time. To get into the swing of things was their immediate task, and with a verve that marked this class throughout its career, they entered wholeheartedly into studies and extra-curricular activities. To the entire class with their '45 pins, and to some with the coveted Torch pin, came the thrill and realization that they had reached the top.

The united and vigorous support this class gave to the War Bond Drives, the Red Cross and the Community Chest, forecasts the future acceptance of citizens' responsibilities by these graduates. The Class of '45, to leave some tangible evidence of their appreciation of Ballard's many gifts to them, presented the school with a mural for the Study Hall. Unique in the school's history this year, was a prom held in January for the mid-year graduates.

A rush of events crowded upon each other in the final week: cramming for final exams, senior sneak day, the senior picnic, signing of long-awaited Shingles, and the prom for June graduates.

These upperclassmen were ably led in their activities for the year by: President Heine Sorenson, Vice-President Marmion Costello, Secretary Al Woodhouse, and Treasurer Bob Ihlanfeldt. A great deal of credit also goes to Mr. Minzel, who was class counselor, and to Mrs. Arnold and Mr. Goodman, senior sponsors, for their guidance during the past three years.
